

Radicals Form Peace Party at A Private Riot

Launch 'Workers of America' in Meeting of Delegates Representing 17 Groups of Left Wing

Seek Foothold in Congress

Aim to Overthrow Society by Legal Means, They Assert as They Quarrel

Delegates from seventeen radical organizations, representing about 25,000 members, met yesterday at the Labor Temple, in East Eighty-fourth Street, and launched, after half an hour of haranguing, the Workers' Party of America. The purpose of the new organization, according to its sponsors, is to accomplish, in "regular political fashion," what the country's radicals have been unable to achieve by more direct methods.

To this end the new political party plans to put forward candidates for Congress in 1922.

The Communist delegates started their first uproar over the effort of Harry Watson, a well known radical, to get the convention to recognize him as a delegate.

Demands He Be Heard

Caleb Harrison, who was elected permanent chairman at the opening of the session, had previously declared that delegates to the convention would be admitted only from recognized political organizations, which, prior to the issuance of the call, had made public declaration in favor of the principles set forth in the call. All delegates, he said, were pledged to abide by the rules and principles of the convention.

The trouble started when Watson, denied admission by the convention, demanded to be heard "on a point of information." The chairman refused to recognize him, telling him he must report to the credentials committee. Watson refused to demand recognition and shouted:

"I demand a point of information. Even if you bust you will have to give it to me. This is a question of the proletariat, and if you put me out you will have to use force."

Boes and hisses greeted Watson's protest, and, including a minority of delegates, the insurgent radical, jumped to his feet, shouting, and a fight started in the balcony.

The chairman called for the secret-arms, and after a rough scuffle in the balcony, amid the boes and cheers, about ten of the disturbers were ejected. As Watson was being ejected he yelled back over his shoulder: "Go to hell, you damned skunks!"

Upstairs Second Internationale

Another demonstration took place when James P. Shannon, of the American Labor Alliance, declared that his organization was to be carried along on the lines of the Communist Internationale. He was wildly cheered. He denounced the Second Internationale as having betrayed the people.

He referred to the American Federation of Labor as "Gomper's bureaucracy," and in comparing the labor party and the socialist party with this organization he said: "The difference between them and us is that we are fighting and militant organization while they are afraid to fight."

There was no danger of a riotist tendency creeping into the new party, he said, explaining that the party would be bound by discipline and not by "executive referendum."

Margaret Provy was made vice-chairman, and J. Louis Engdhal, former editor of a socialist magazine printed in Chicago, and A. J. Winestone and E. P. Allison were made secretaries.

Various telegrams of congratulation on the launching of the new party were read from radical organizations throughout the country, and it was then announced that congratulatory messages had been telegraphed to Joseph M. Goldwell and Charles Ashleigh, who have been ordered released from Federal penitentiaries.

Engdhal Opens Convention

The convention was opened by Engdhal, who left the Socialist party because of its extreme socialism during the war. There convention will be in session again this afternoon and tomorrow. Among the organizations represented are: American Labor Alliance, which has a preponderance of delegates at the convention; Workers' Council of the United States, with thirteen delegates; Greek Socialist Union, the Armenian Workers' Federation, the Jewish Workers' Federation, the Arbeiter Bildung Verein, the Irish Labor League, the Finnish Socialist Union, Hungarian Socialist Union, Jewish Socialist Union, Italian Socialist Union and the Greek Socialist Union.

Submarine Had Open Exit Unfastened Manhole Blamed For Lost Island Accident

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Dec. 24.—An open manhole connecting the engine room of the submarine S-48 with one of the large ballast tanks, was responsible for the disabling of the submarine in Long Island Sound, December 7, P. B. Brill, general manager of the open manhole company, said today in the first statement from the company as to the cause of the accident which endangered the lives of 100 men.

An inspection of the craft, which is now at the company's plant, showed that the engine room manhole used for cleaning out the ballast tanks, was open. General manager Brill said the responsibility for the open manhole has not been fixed.

New "Pershing Cap" for Army Officers Is Approved

WASHINGTON, Dec. 24.—A new style in headgear for army officers, designed by the quartermaster general, and known in the army as the "Pershing cap," has been approved by Secretary Weeks.

Specifications for the manufacture of the cap issued to-day show it to conform in color and material to the style now in use, but to be of considerable difference in size and shape. The visor is longer and extends further from the forehead with a slope of 55 degrees from the vertical. The top is an inch broader, with the slack cloth crown, and is slightly higher than that of the cap now being worn.

Deputies Fight, Missiles Are Hurlled, in Mexican Chamber

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 24.—The Mexican Chamber of Deputies had a strenuous session this morning, which ended in a clash. Members of the labor group crossed the room and attacked deputies belonging to the Constitutional party. Blows were exchanged and missiles hurled, one of the latter striking and slightly injuring the president of the chamber. Further trouble is expected.

Tenants Hurlled From Beds by Still Explosion

Blast Rocks Six - Story Apartment Building in 14th Street; Alleged Owner Critically Injured

Fire Damage Is Heavy

Second Death in Brooklyn in Week From Wood Alcohol Brings Warning

An exploding whisky still in the basement of a six-story crowded tenement, at 538 East Fourteenth Street, rocked the entire building early yesterday morning. The force of the blast was so terrific as to blow many people from their beds and caused a report to reach police headquarters that anarchists had exploded a bomb. Many windows were shattered. The fire damage was heavy.

Peter Caproni, forty years old, who is charged with having operated the still, received burns about the hands, face and body, which are expected to result in his death at Bellevue Hospital, where he is held a prisoner on a charge of violating the revenue laws.

The firemen, after extinguishing the flames, found in the basement four barrels of alleged corn whisky and several barrels of mash. They found pieces of shattered copper ripped from the still, which was of about twenty-five gallons capacity. Other tenants said that Caproni had occupied the basement only a short time and that he did not sleep or eat his meals there.

"Hootch" Proves Fatal

District Attorney Harry E. Lewis, of Brooklyn, issued a warning yesterday that wood alcoholic "hootch" was being sold in all boroughs by bootleggers who had difficulty in getting enough good alcohol to supply their holiday trade. One death from wood alcoholic poisoning was reported from Gouverneur Hospital yesterday. It was the second from the same cause within a week. The victim was John Rocco, a laborer, forty years old, of 24 Delancey Street.

Morning papers carrying the story yesterday that churches of all faiths would be invited by Director Ralph A. Day to discuss the advisability of using unfermented wines in religious rites, in no instance said that Director Day would make any such compulsory order. Director Day was bothered much yesterday by persons who it seemed insisted on misunderstanding the matter and calling the director to account for what they regarded as a "compulsory order."

It is not in the province of Mr. Day to make compulsory liquor regulations, as he explained yesterday. In investigating alleged abuses of the privilege of releases of wines for rabbinical usages, Mr. Day made the matter general and looked into the usages of sacramental wines by all faiths, including the Roman Catholic.

"All recommendations regarding the use of unfermented fruit juices for sacramental purposes have come from the leaders of the religions themselves, who are co-operating with the prohibition department in preventing alleged abuses of sacramental wine regulations," Mr. Day said.

Did Not Suggest Move

"No suggestions have come from me regarding the discontinuance of fermented wine for sacramental purposes. I have no idea of trying to tell or instruct any other churches as to where they should do. I am simply interested in seeing that the law is properly enforced. The Reformed Jews withdrew very little sacramental wine. A congregation of 3,000 people would be entitled to 30,000 gallons, but such a congregation has withdrawn less than 1,000 gallons. The abuse came from small congregations which sprang up over night, elected their own rabbis and proceeded to abuse the rabbinical wine privileges."

The Roman Catholic and Episcopal churches are both concerned in using fermented wines for sacramental purposes. All other churches have long since abandoned the use of the fermented wine and are using the unfermented fruit juice instead. In neither of the churches named has there been any abuses noted, it is admitted.

Director Day was unable to understand yesterday how any objection could be made to a plan whereby the priests of all faiths using wine should be the mentors as to the methods and means of its release and distribution for purely sacramental purposes.

John J. Hanley, of 3131 Broadway, who for years, according to Prohibition Agents Neuberger and Mead, operated several saloons on upper Broadway, and who retired some years ago with a fortune estimated at $500,000, was arrested yesterday by the agents named. His new $3,000 automobile was seized, as were four cases of whisky, champagne and cordials.

Angelo Stefanio, of 444 East 116th Street, chauffeur for Hanley, was arrested. The car was held at the West Thirtieth Street police station.

Wanted Bert in Peanut Shell, but Wife Objects

Girl Writes Affectionate Letter, Mrs. A. A. Walters Gets It, and Sues

Mrs. Gertrude H. Walters, of 9 Cambridge Place, Brooklyn, began suit yesterday in Brooklyn Supreme Court for absolute divorce from her husband, Albert A. Walters, a salesman for the Victor Chemical Works, of 95 Liberty Street, because her feminine intuition scented infidelity in a letter written to her husband by Mabel E. Tammany, of 1097 North Main Street, Providence, R. I.

The alleged letter opens inquiringly with: "Darling, but why should I worry? I only know that I had a wonderful (notice how often I use the word in connection with you) evening with my little Bertie and am longing to see you gain. My lips still tingle from the touch of yours."

The writer agrees that she is slightly jealous of "Bertie's" possible amorous exploits, adding that, figuratively speaking, she tears "the hair of all the women with whom you are coming into contact now. I suppose it is quite as well I don't know who you are with, as I would suffer terribly."

The lady goes on to voice the wish that "I would like to keep you in a peanut shell on the window sill, where no one else could get you and where you would be mine alone."

Justice Dike allowed Mrs. Walters $100 counsel fees and $25 a week temporary alimony.

Treaty Paying Colombia for Canal Ratified

South American Congress Accepts $25,000,000 Pact After Serious Opposition in Chamber of Deputies

Caused Fight in U.S. Senate

Measure Was Bitterly Criticized as a Reflection on Actions in Panama

The treaty between Colombia and the United States has been ratified by the Colombian Congress, according to a cablegram received here yesterday by the American International Corporation.

The treaty, which provides for the payment of $25,000,000 to Colombia by the United States, was ratified by the United States Senate on April 20 of this year and by the Colombian Senate on October 13. Under Colombian governmental procedure it was necessary to obtain ratification by the Chamber of Deputies as well as the Senate. Ratification by that body has been pending for some time, and during debate considerable opposition was developed against the document.

Question Long Pending

The Colombian treaty is an outgrowth of difficulties between the United States and Colombia in connection with the acquisition by the United States of the Panama Canal route and of recognition of the Panamanian republic by the United States government.

During the administration of President Theodore Roosevelt, considerable debate also attended the ratification of the treaty in the United States Senate. Those who opposed ratification charged that Colombia had long been engaged in trying to "hold up" the United States for a large sum of money for the canal route; that Panama, once an independent state, revolted from Colombian rule for just cause; and that the presence of American naval forces at the time of the revolt had nothing to do with the failure of Colombia to force Panama back under Colombian control.

In short, opponents of ratification charged that the United States winked or connived at the Panama revolution to get the Canal Zone.

Regret Clause Struck Out

This charge was denied with equal vigor by advocates of the treaty. The treaty as first negotiated expressed "the regret" of the United States. Later the document was re-drafted so as to include provision for the payment of $25,000,000 to Colombia.

The purpose of the treaty, as expressed in its preamble, is to "restore the cordial friendship that formerly characterized the relations between the two countries and also to define and regulate their rights and interests in respect of the interoceanic canal which the government of the United States has constructed across the Isthmus of Panama."

San Francisco Bakers "Jazz"

Up Pies With Federal Brandy SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 24.—Christmas pies in San Francisco this year will contain liquor, local pie bakers having availed themselves of the permission under the law to "pep their pies" with brandy from the government storehouses.

More than 2,500 gallons of brandy were withdrawn the first three days of this week, Tom Brown, Assistant Federal Prohibition Director, announced.

Under the law, pie-makers were allowed 100 gallons and with one exception every baker took the limit.
